"I want my library" Campaign

The "Ecofuturo" Institute is launching the "I want my library" campaign with the patronage of the publishing houses FTD and Trip besides the Suzano Paper and Cellulose and the colligation of the Brazilian Academy of Letters (ABL), Federal Librarianship Council/Regional Librarianship Council, FNLIJ, the National Foundation of the Children and Young People Books, Ayrton Senna Institute, C&A Institute, Co-Responsibility in Education Institute; Marista – Solidarity Net; Literary Brazil Movement; All for the Education.

The main objective of the project is to gather efforts in order to implement the Brazilian Federal Law (12.244/10), which states that every educational institution in the country must have a library up to the year 2020. This action is related to the logotype "Everyday is a reading day" launched by the Ecofuturo Institute in 2010, on October 12th – Brazilian National Reading Day. For this campaign the institute elaborated a booklet designated to the public and private sectors aiming the creation and the support of school libraries.
