Dear IBBY Australia Members and Supporters,

In stressful times, people turn to books and storytelling more than ever, and already we have seen a plethora of online events such as book readings, author talks and podcasts taking shape here, as the current public health challenge unfolds. For this newsletter is written in a new global environment, as the COVID-19 pandemic has impacted on us all in recent weeks and months.

It has inevitably caused disruption to many literary events. The Bologna Children’s Book Fair has been cancelled and organisers have announced that the next BCBF will be held 12–15 April 2021. In Australia, the Somerset Storyfest, one of the premier literary events for young people, was also cancelled in March, and the associated Second Australian Children’s Laureate Summit was postponed. IBBY Australia events celebrating ICBD – a Quiz Night in Hobart on 2 April and Words Change the World at Strathfield, NSW on 4 April were also not held.

We therefore celebrated International Children’s Book Day online. And we are pleased to have some good news to share, in that IBBY Australia announced on ICBD, the biennial Ena Noël Award 2020 winner, whose identity is revealed in these pages.

We congratulate Ursula Dubosarsky on being named the sixth Australian Children’s Laureate 2020 to 2021 at the National Library of Australia on 11 February. Ursula, who was IBBY Australia’s HCAA nominee for Writing in 2016, has created with illustrator Andrew Joyner a charmingly childlike and hopeful poem in response to the crisis: <https://twitter.com/ozlaureate>

We were delighted to hear on 9 March that Margaret Wild had been awarded the Australia Council for the Arts Lifetime Achievement Award for Literature and congratulate her wholeheartedly.

And we were thrilled to read that Shaun Tan has been shortlisted for the 2020 Kate Greenaway Medal for Tales from the Inner City (Allen and Unwin).

Our thoughts are with IBBY members and supporters as we confront this global challenge. Books should offer some solace in these times of such necessary social isolation.

Best regards,
Robyn Sheahan-Bright
Jack is the winner of the IBBY Australia Ena Noël Award for emerging authors and illustrators 2020. Congratulations to Jack Heath for 500 Minutes of Danger.

Announced on 2nd April 2020 on International Children’s Book Day the medal will be presented when a satisfactory date can be organised.

Jack Writes:

“I want to thank the International Board on Books for Young People for undertaking the difficult, time-consuming, and expensive task of administering this award. It makes a huge difference not only to the authors and illustrators who are selected, but also to the army of librarians, teachers, booksellers and parents who don’t have the time to read every single book, but who still want to make good quality recommendations to the young people who trust them.

Thanks to my publisher, Scholastic, who nominated me for this award, and who have given me the opportunity to experiment with so many different genres and styles over the years.”

See more on Jack’s Facebook page.

The judging panel report that once again a variety of titles and formats were received. The quality of titles from new younger creators was impressive.

Hans Christian Andersen Awards Announced

Junko Yokota, Chair of the Jury for the Hans Christian Andersen Award of the International Board on Books for Young People, announced the 2020 winners of the Award often referred to as the ‘Little Nobel Prize’ on 4th May.

The winners of the 2020 Hans Christian Andersen Award are Jacqueline Woodson of the USA as Author and Albertine of Switzerland as Illustrator. Jacqueline Woodson has a prolific body of writing from picture books to young adult literature, all of which feature lyrical language, powerful characters, and an abiding sense of hope. As illustrator, Albertine creates books with multiple levels of interpretation, with drawings made with infinite precision that are lively and full of humour. Films from the virtual IBBY Press Conference can be found here.

IBBY is incredibly grateful to Nami Island Inc. in the Republic of Korea for their sponsorship of this prestigious award.

Presentation of the medals intended to be at the IBBY Congress in Russia September 2020, will be delayed.
The 2020 IBBY-Asahi Reading Promotion Award was announced on May 4th.

Congratulations to the winner of the 2020 IBBY-Asahi Reading Promotion Award. Casa Cuna Cuenteros of Buenos Aires, Argentina. Casa Cuna Cuenteros is a group of passionate volunteers who carry out reading and storytelling activities in a children’s hospital in Buenos Aires. Link to the IBBY media release.

The IBBY-Asahi Reading Promotion Award is awarded biennially to one group or institution whose outstanding activities are judged to be making a lasting contribution to reading promotion programmes for children and young people. The Award was established in 1986 and is sponsored by the Asahi Shimbun newspaper.

IBBY acknowledges the Asahi Shimbun newspaper company in Japan for their continuing sponsorship of this prestigious award.

Alyson Simpson awarded the School Libraries Association NSW Maurice Saxby Award

IBBY Australia extends our huge congratulations to Alyson, a valued member of the National Executive. This is a tremendous honour and an acknowledgement of her dedicated work in promoting reading and literacy, as a teacher educator, and for her over two decades of work with the KOALA Awards. The School Library Association Awards were presented on the 7th March.

The winners of the 2020 IBBY- iRead Outstanding Reading Promoter Award are Marit Törnqvist from the Netherlands and Zhu Yongxin from China. Marit Törnqvist is a writer and illustrator who has developed reading programmes for children that focus on not only the story but the experience of reading itself and on encouraging children to narrate and illustrate their own stories. Zhu Yongxin is a well-known scholar who has devoted his life to continuous research and activities related to reading promotion, including training and programmes for children in rural areas and children with special needs, the vulnerable and those in remote areas of China.

‘Read for Your Life!’

Question marks abounded after the 2018-2019 Laureate, Morris Gleitzman, hung up his laurel wreath in November. Who would follow him in this critical role? The suspense finally ended to rousing cheers of delight on 11 February at Canberra’s National Library when Ursula Dubosarsky was revealed as the 2020-2021 Australian Children’s Laureate.

IBBY Australia’s 2016 HCA nominee for writing, Ursula received the official magpie statue from National Children’s Commissioner Megan Mitchell at a joyous, impeccably organised ceremony that included the enthusiastic participation of nearly 200 students from local Canberra Schools. The Laureate’s inaugural speech included a brand-new story, ‘The March of the Ants’—, shared with the assistance of eager young audience members.

One of the most original, versatile, and talented Australian writers today, Ursula has written more than 60 books for readers for all ages – fiction, picture books, nonfiction and plays – which have been published widely in English-speaking countries and translated into fourteen languages. She has also won nine Premier’s Literary Awards, along with the CBCA Book of the Year Award. As she embarks on her two-year post, Ursula will trumpet the theme ‘Read for Your Life!’ to encourage children to join their local library. That message is clearly going to be challenging to deliver in this period of Covid-19 library closures, but Ursula and her magpie are already finding to promote via exciting online resources. The School Magazine has also produced a collection Tales of All Kinds in honour of the Laureate, with an associated webinar. See the new look Laureate website for further resources.

The winner of the 2020 Astrid Lindgren Memorial Award Laureate is Baek Heena.

Announced on March 31st live from the home of Astrid Lindgren in Stockholm and on air via webcast.

Beak Heena is one of Korea’s most recognised picture book artists. With a background in film animation, her visual style features handmade miniature figurines in environments painstakingly lit and photographed. She has published thirteen picture books that are popular throughout Asia, several which have been translated. One of her most successful books, Cloud Bread, was published in English in 2011.

The Golden Pinwheel Young Illustrators Competition

The Golden Pinwheel Young Illustrators Competition is an international illustration contest held annually as a special event of the China Shanghai International Children’s Book Fair (CCBF), with the support of the Shanghai Press and Publication Administration. Since its creation in 2015, the competition has been providing a venue for emerging illustrators to showcase their talent. It aims to build bridges between them and children’s publishers, both domestically and globally. In so doing it has given fresh life to China’s children’s book industry. The Golden Pinwheel is not merely a stand-alone competition—it is a comprehensive program, which includes exhibitions, an illustration yearbook and a variety of promotional campaigns

Submissions: until 30 Jun 2020 (23:59, GMT+8)

Finalists selection: 6 Jul 2020 - 15 Aug 2020

Finalists announcement: 9 Sep 2020

Ekidnas is a group of South Australian children’s book writers and illustrators that first got together in 1993 to provide mutual support and encouragement, and to share their knowledge and personal experience of the publishing industry.

The impetus came when writer Jeri Kroll was about to publish her first picture book and sought advice from her friend Gillian Rubinstein, Gillian had heard of the ASA’s Children’s Book Illustrators group and thought something similar would benefit local writers.

The first meeting was held in 1993 at the South Australian Writers Centre. It was decided then that the only criterion for membership was that you had to have published at least one book for young people. (Later, playwrights were included). And once a member, always a member.

The name chosen for the group – eKidnas - was a pun on the red echidna which was the logo of the SAWC. Membership rose so some formality crept in with the taking of Minutes and rotating volunteer Chairs. Meetings were always very social with wine and cake and literary gossip.

Although the prime purpose of the group is mutual support, over the years it has entertained visiting interstate and overseas writers, agitated for young people and their authors to be part of the Adelaide Festival Writers' Week (they now are!); protested literary censorship; and organised 'BooksBeInIt' promotions.

The group now numbers over 50 and although the meetings have dropped away members maintain contact through Facebook and google groups; there is a well-attended Christmas dinner, they attend each other’s book launches and, most importantly, cheer each other on. There is even a T-shirt!

In the footsteps of haiku master.
Matsuo Basho (1644-1694)

An Australia Council Grant allowed me to travel in Japan with artist Sadami Konchi to complete our picture storybook, We Children and the Narrow Road to the Deep North, both writing and artwork. This was to visit exact spots where Basho and his friend Sora had sat and written haiku, and took us travelling from ancient temples, to majestic old trees, to a special waterfall, to a samurai’s house and to moss and sedge filled contemplation gardens.

The highlight of the visit was in finding a Zen temple in the Nomachi area of Kanazawa where Basho came to visit his benefactor, fellow poet, Issha. The gates were open and led us into a riotously overgrown garden. We looked closely at the haiku on an upright stone which lamented the fact that Basho came too late, as his young friend had already died.

Move, it you can hear, Silent mound of my friend,
My wails and the answering, Roar of autumn wind.

On his return to Edo, Basho wrote his classic text The Narrow Road to the Deep North on which I based my text. Sadami is completing her fine paintings.
